Pfizer Canada confirms availability of EpiPen® (epinephrine) Auto-Injector for Canadian Patients

KIRKLAND, QC, October 30, 2015 – Pfizer Canada Inc., the Canadian distributor of EpiPen® and EpiPen® Jr (0.3 and 0.15 mg epinephrine) Auto-Injectors, fully expects to meet the exceptional increase in demand on the Canadian market resulting from the nationwide recall of Sanofi's Allerject® (epinephrine injection, USP). The recall is specific to the Allerject® epinephrine auto-injector, manufactured by Sanofi and does not apply to EpiPen®.

Pfizer Canada has already shipped its current EpiPen® inventory to wholesalers to be made available to Canadian patients.

Patient safety is Pfizer's top priority and we are working diligently to secure and distribute five times our usual monthly EpiPen® inventory to replace the Allerject® auto-injectors recalled from the market. We are pleased to confirm that starting the first week of November, several additional shipments of EpiPen® and of EpiPen® Jr will arrive in Canada, which will be sufficient to meet the unexpected increase in demand by month end.
